Seek 5th Car In Accident

Testimony at Inquest at Eldorado Claims Auto Stopped Suddenly

Saline county and state highway officials are directing a search for a 1957 Chevrolet, "mystery car" in the "rent Sunday afternoon" in Route 45 about three miles north of Harrisburg that claimed two lives and injured nine other persons.

Original reports on the accident mentioned only four automobiles, but testimony at the inquest held Monday evening included mention of a fifth automobile, a 1957 black Chevrolet, that may have played a major role in the chain-reaction collision.

After hearing the testimony of numerous witnesses the coroner's jury returned a verdict that Quentin Brown, 7, and his sister Deloris Brown, 18, died as the result of injuries received in an automobile accident Feb. 9, 1958, on U. S. highway 45, in Harrisburg township.

No recommendations were made in the jury verdict.

Large Crowd Present
The inquest, conducted by Coroner James Thornton, was held in the city hall at Eldorado and attracted a large crowd. Approximately two hours were necessary to hear the evidence and reach the verdict.

Testimony showed there were three automobiles travelling toward Eldorado and two toward Harrisburg in the near vicinity of the collision. The testimony established that the accident occurred when the automobile occupied by the Brown family and an automobile driven by Carrol Partain hit head-on, the collision occurring in the Brown lane of traffic. Testimony by Partain and passengers with him was that a car in front of them stopped suddenly on the highway, making it necessary that Partain apply his brakes quickly and try to pull around the car blocking his progress. Partain stated he did not see a car approaching him.

The automobile that Partain states stopped, and its occupants, are the object of an intensive investigation and search by authorities as it apparently was driven from the scene of the wreck.

Lineup of Cars

Travelling toward Eldorado were the Brown family, including the mother Mrs. Minnie Brown, and five children, in a 1951 Chevrolet. Trailing their car was a Pontiac, driven by Gilbert Wargel, Equality, and back of the Pontiac was an Edsel, driven by Louis B. Neira, Mattoon. There were four passengers with Wargel and Mr. Neira was accompanied by his wife and son.

Travelling toward Harrisburg was a 1955 Chevrolet convertible, owned by David Prather of Eldorado, but driven by Carrol Partain of Broughton. Prather was a passenger in his automobile, with three others.

Testimony showed the Prather automobile was back of a 1957 Chevrolet.

About Town

CLIPPINGS: Got an envelope from P. J. Valters, former Shawnee town publisher now living in Florida, which contained a number of clipped items.

They were taken from the Wall Street Journal and were pertinent to this area.

One said: "Quickie marriages" are outlawed, effective July 1, by Mississippi. Blood tests will be required for the first time; instead of no waiting period there'll be a three-day residence requirement and minimum marrying ages of 15 for women, 17 for men. Statistic: 43,212 of 66,233 Mississippi marriages in 1956, were by non-resident couples.

Valters' comment was "Should Help Shawneetown."

Yep, a lot of marriages from this area have been performed at Corinth, Miss.

Another points out that "The Administration shelves plans for two new Federal prisons."

I knew the deal was being held up, which means that apparently a lot of hard work by local sponsors throughout the Midwest and lots of time and money spent by federal officials in visiting the areas has gone for naught or (aught).

JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL humor, as taken from the Trumpet, Junior high school publication:

"What did King Tut say when he saw the white elephants coming?" "Here come the elephants."

Also:

"What would you do if you saw a battleship coming down the street?"

"I'd torpedo it with my submarine."

"Where would you get the submarine?"

"The same place you got the battleship."

And:

"Don't you ever 'shoo' flies around here?"

"No, we let them go barefooted."

And I see by the City Schools Bulletin that the kids will get a day off Feb. 21, when the Saline County Teachers' Institute will be held at Harrisburg Junior high.

Also I see that local elimination spelling contests will be held March 7, and the county contest will be March 15 at Horace Mann school. The students will not be dismissed from school the day of the local contests but they will not have to go to school the day of the county meet.

Arensman Elected President of Businessmen's Ass'n

James Arensman was elected president of the Harrisburg Businessmen's Association at a luncheon meeting held yesterday at Schriener's cafe.

Tom Davenport was elected vice president and Dick Parker was elected secretary-treasurer. The retiring president, Wayne Gideumb, addressed the group thanking the membership for the co-operation it had given him during the past year.

Plans were made for the second annual George Washington's Birthday Anniversary "Truth Day" sales event. This will be the first of eight citywide sales promotions to be sponsored by the association in 1958.

SVDA Votes to Take Part in N. York Exhibit

Group Also to Set Up Office with Clerk in Court House

The Saline Valley Development Association will take part in a huge Industrial Exposition in New York City in April.

This action was voted last night at Eldorado at a meeting of the SVDA's executive board and its board of governors.

The group also voted to set up an office, with a clerk, in the court house at an early date.

These moves followed a spirited meeting held at 4 p. m. yesterday at the Harrisburg city hall, attended by several score Harrisburg business and professional men, labor representatives and seven or eight members of the Harrisburg Ministerial Alliance.

Drive Discussed

The meeting was called to see what Harrisburg wanted to do about entering the exposition, and following an explanation of the project, the group quickly approved entering by a unanimous vote.

The SVDA drive for funds, going nicely elsewhere in Saline and Gallatin counties but sagging a bit in Harrisburg, was discussed and immediately this phase of the program started picking up locally. Harrisburg's share of $4,000 sought right now to set up the court house office and to take care of incidental expenses such as cost of stationery, postage and telephone calls is between $1,800 and $2,000.

Presiding over the meeting was Robert S. Davenport. He began by stating Eldorado already had allocated funds for an exhibit in the New York exposition. If the entire SVDA did not desire to enter, Eldorado was going to go in alone from this area, he explained.

See Larger Exhibit

"It will take a lot of work and financing to enter the exposition but I believe it will be worth it," said Mr. Davenport.

Last year Southern Illinois University sponsored the exhibits of southern Illinois communities including Eldorado at the exposition. It was specifically for industrialists and industrial realtors and 5,000 of them attended. There they saw the community exhibits and looked over brochures that had been prepared for them. On hand to "give the pitch" to the industrialists and to explain the brochures were members of the staff from SIU and Frank Zolan, secretary of the Eldorado Chamber of Commerce.

Lincoln Was Great Because of Belief in God, Pree Tells GOP

Address Dinner Attended by 325 at Eldorado

Declaring Abraham Lincoln was great because of his profound belief in God, Edward G. Pree supported his statement with remarks and speeches made by the President from Illinois at the Abraham Lincoln dinner held last night in the Eldorado Township high school cafeteria.

A total of 325 persons was present at the dinner to hear Mr. Pree, a Springfield attorney and former administrative assistant to Gov. William G. Stratton. The event was sponsored by the Saline County Republican Central committee and the Republican Boosters club and there were people present from throughout Saline County and some from other counties.

The speaker dedicated a solemn address to two Saline county Republican leaders who died in 1957—Senator Glen O. Jones, "one of the most brilliant and promising members of the state legislature whose future seemed bright indeed," and Kenneth C. Capel, "a splendid leader and dedicated worker who personally was very close to me."

Issues 'Chins Up' Statement About Economy

$2 Billion Postal Modernization Program Announced

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower predicted today that the recession will start to end next month and employment will pick up.

In a special, written statement, the chief executive acknowledged that unemployment currently is bringing hardship to many Americans, but he said he is convinced that better days are in sight.

The President issued his "chins-up" statement in the wake of estimates by the Labor and Commerce departments that unemployment went to 4,494,000 in mid-January, the highest since 1950.

The one-month increase of 1,100,000 in the number of jobless caused official and public alarm.

Sees End of Down-Turn

The President also obviously was concerned about demands in Congress that the administration take drastic steps promptly to prevent a depression.

He said that from the best advice he could get he believed "that we have had most of our bad news on the unemployment front."

"I am convinced that we are not facing a prolonged down-swing in activity," he said. "Every indication is that March will commence to see the start of a pick up in job opportunities. That should mark the beginning of the end of the down-turn in our economy, provided we apply ourselves with confidence to the job ahead."

"As Americans we have a responsibility to work toward the early resumption of sound growth in our economy."

The President added, "I have confidence in the recovery of our economy later this year . . ."

Take Right Steps
Tuesday he announced a two-billion-dollar program for modernization of post office buildings and equipment during the next three to five years as one major "pump priming" effort to speed an economic upturn.

Today he said the administration is engaged in "systematic and comprehensive planning for expansion and modernization of public works and buildings, all of these useful public projects to be taken off the shelf when they could most appropriately be undertaken."

"In all these matters of government policy," he said, "it is well to remember that with an economy as complex as ours, it is necessary not only to avoid the taking of wrong steps but confidently take the right ones. This we propose to do."

He conceded that the latest unemployment figures indicated a sharper than usual drop in economic activity for this time of year.

Two Reasons for Confidence
He said while "all of us" are deeply concerned about the hardships suffered by the families of the unemployed and by the loss of production, these developments have to be viewed in power perspective.

He based his confidence on an economic recovery later this year on two principal reasons:

—His conviction that the "underlying forces of growth remain strong and undiminished." The population is growing at a rate of three million a year. With billions of dollars being spent on research and development, new products and new jobs are inevitable, he said.

—The firm policy of the government to foster recovery in every sound way. He said he is making sure that we will go forward on every practical avenue of action."

Lincoln—Pivot of American History

BY DON OAKLEY

It was Nov. 19, 1863. Nearly five months before, the Great Battle had been fought, the battle that was to prove the midpoint and turning point of the bloodiest war the young nation had ever known.

A National Cemetery was to be dedicated. A board of commissioners, formed of governors of the northern states whose troops had been involved, had invited the man considered to be the greatest living American orator to deliver the main address. Already the ceremonies had been postponed a month in order to allow the speaker time to prepare his speech.

A formal invitation was sent to the President of the United States and, as an afterthought, he was asked to make a few appropriate remarks following the principal oration, though some question had been raised by members of the board as to "his ability to speak upon such a grave and solemn occasion."

When the day came, the President, as one witness wrote, "said his half dozen words of consecration, and the music wailed and we went home through crowded and cheering streets. And all the particulars are in the daily papers."

Those "half dozen" simple words of Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address have rung down the decades with ever increasing meaning and inspiration.

We do not celebrate the Battle of Gettysburg. It is Lincoln's birthday that we set aside as the day on which to honor the memory of him who stands like an Everest in our history.

Yet it seems fitting on this anniversary of his birth to especially remember Lincoln as he was at Gettysburg. For it was not only the midpoint of the war which so profoundly shaped this nation's destiny, it is still nearly the midpoint of the whole American story.

Lincoln reminded his listeners that only 87 years stood between them and that day on which a new nation, conceived in liberty, had been brought forth. Men who had been alive that day were still living when Lincoln spoke.

Today America faces a challenge to the principles to which it was dedicated in 1776 and rededicated by Lincoln in 1863—a challenge no less grave than any it has ever faced before.

And like the challenge of Lincoln's day, the danger lies not so much in a foreign enemy, but within ourselves—that we not lose by default what the blood and sacrifice of previous generations have gained.

Gettysburg could have given cause for over optimism to the Union, just as America's first satellite could now give us an excuse to return to the comfortable complacency which was only recently so rudely jarred. But Gettysburg did not decide the Civil War; the Civil War decided Gettysburg.

No, Lincoln on that day did not call for jubilation or resting on laurels. Rather, he humbly prayed for rededication and new resolution. The nation could have taken a different course after Gettysburg; the course it will take today is not yet decided. The present is as much a pivot point in history as was 1863.

The task remains; the same challenge, as Lincoln said at another time, of whether "we shall nobly save or meanly lose the last, best hope of earth."

Words for Today

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: New York University Professor Schwartz Got Into Trouble With Congress By Being Too Honest; He Was Probing White House Wire-Pulling; Arkansas Congressman Team Up With Republicans To Get Him.

WASHINGTON. — The chief trouble with Dr. Bernard Schwartz, counsel for the Moulter committee, who has been fired, is that Congressman Oren Harris of Arkansas hired him in the mistaken belief that Schwartz would conduct a dull, academic study of government regulatory agencies. Harris, a friend of the big utilities, never expected the scholarly professor would really dig. Ever since Schwartz started digging, the Arkansas congressman has tried to sidetrack him.

By a curious coincidence, the final move to fire him started immediately after Schwartz notified the subcommittee of his intention to pursue the scandals right into the White House.

Here are the sensational moves Schwartz made just before subcommittee members started putting the skids under him: 1. — Schwartz reported that the staff had canceled checks proving that Miami Attorney Thurman Whiteside paid "thousands of dollars" to FCC Commissioner Richard Mack. Whiteside was asked by Miami Judge Robert H. Anderson, whose former law firm represented National Airlines, to help the airline get TV Channel 10 in Miami.

When this column originally investigated the story, Mack claimed he had "borrowed" money from Whiteside.

WHITE HOUSE MEDDLING 2. — Schwartz ordered two investigators to fly to Boston Monday morning to look into charges that the Boston Herald Traveler pulled political wires to get a TV license worth an estimated $20,000,000. Among those who went to bat for this loyal Republican paper were Assistant President Sherman Adams, Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks, and Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.).

3. — Following a probe of Mack, Schwartz told Chairman Moulter he intended to investigate White House meddling in individual cases before the regulatory agencies which are supposed to be as independent as the federal courts. Schwartz claimed he has evidence that Assistant President Sherman Adams and White House Counsel Gerald Morgan have brought pressure on the regulatory agencies to help top Republicans.

Significantly, President Eisenhower tried to brush off the FCC investigation at his last press conference by quoting "a White House lawyer" that the practice of FCC commissioners to accept expense money from both the taxpayers and the Radio-TV industry was not illegal. This was in direct contradiction of his own Comptroller-General Joe Campbell, who testified that double-charging of expense money was in violation of the law and probably a criminal offense.

When this column asked White House Counsel Morgan if he had brought political pressure on regulatory agencies, he replied: "I have no comment."

This is one reason for the frantic desire to side-track the investigation.

HARRIS' SPY

The charge that Schwartz submitted improper expense vouchers is a deliberate frame-up. The truth is that the vouchers were prepared by Herman Clay Beasley, whom Harris appointed to the committee staff. It is no secret that Beasley has been giving Harris daily detailed reports on what Schwartz has been doing.

Beasley actually submitted vouchers for Schwartz, but originally made them too high. The professor reduced them. He also accounted for the expenses in detail to Harris, himself. Despite this, a story that Schwartz had submitted "improper expenses" was leaked to Les Carpenter, close friend of Harris who writes for the Arkansas Gazette and Tulsa Tribune.

Carpenter sent the story to the Tulsa Tribune. There was no publication in the Arkansas paper. When the story appeared, Harris pretended to be surprised and "shocked" by it.

HARRIS' FREE TRIPS

Harris' own trips could stand more investigating than the travel of Dr. Schwartz, whose moving expenses were actually higher than what he charged the government. It is no secret that Harris takes free trips at the expense of the oil and gas industry though he heads the committee that handles all oil and gas legislation.

C. H. Murphy, Jr., president of the Murphy Oil Company, admitted to this column that Harris has taken free rides in his company plane. Asked whether the congressman had offered to pay for this travel, Murphy said: "Anyone who goes is a guest. No one pays except the company."

When congressmen got free passes from the railroads some years ago it caused such a scandal that a law was passed making it illegal for the railroad to give congressmen free transportation. However, Congressman Harris, who has introduced the Harris Natural Gas Act, now takes free plane rides from an oil company which will benefit from that act.

OTHER VOUCHERS

Two Republican congressmen who have clamored the loudest for Schwartz' resignation, submitted interesting vouchers.

Congressman John Bennett (R., Mich.) happened to be in Washington when a subcommittee meeting was called. He promptly submitted a voucher, claiming $289.40 in expenses for a round trip from Michigan to Washington. Yet Bennett was already in Washington when the committee business came up. Although the meeting lasted less than two hours, he collected $12 per diem from September 22 to October 4. Bennett has also been using one of the committee stenographers, Mary Bastianelli, to give free Spanish lessons to his child ren.

Congressman John Heseltine (R., Mass.) made a special trip to Washington to attend a committee meeting on October 17. However, he collected $12 per diem from October 15 to 18, though he lived in his own home all four days.

Editor Writes More About Tour of Southern States

Finds it Rains in Florida; Marvels at Enormous Building Program; Sees Some Sights

By CURTIS SMALL, Editor, The Daily Register (This is the second of two stories relating experiences of Mr. and Mrs. Small on a tour of southern states, completed last week-end).

WHEN IT RAINS in Florida, it rains. That is a trite expression, but the hardest sustained rain we had ever experienced presented a road hazard and driving problem for one entire day. We were awakened at Old Town, Florida, by rain about 7 o'clock, scurried to the car in rain, in and out of a restaurant in rain and had rain practically all the day except for one brief let-up when it only sprinkled while we were visiting the Bok tower at Lake Wales.

We had intended spending most of the day at Silver Springs but when we arrived at Ocala, it was so dark due to low clouds that we had to use our headlights to observe traffic signals, so we drove on.

At Lake Wales we visited the Mountain Lake Sanctuary, a game refuge, garden and site of the famed Bok memorial tower with its carillons. We recalled that during the 1920's when we were news editor of The Register that President Calvin Coolidge went to Lake Wells to dedicate the "singing tower" as a memorial to the late Edward Bok, Nobel peace prize winner.

The huge tower is reflected in a pool at its base, around which wind walkways, with flowers of various species lining the walkways, and birds flitting in the trees. But, we wonder how that big Thomas cat got into the place. There was a sign that said distinctly no cats or dogs were allowed, and a cat was prowling the premises.

It rained and rained, but we continued our trip, stopping from sheer exhaustion at Clewiston, Florida, only 80 miles from our destination of Fort Lauderdale, and we completed our southward journey the next day.

THIS WAS OUR SECOND visit to the so-called gold coast region of Florida, and although we recalled some of the stupendousness of the area, we were again amazed and almost doubted what we saw. Housing projects, hotels, motels, co-operative housing structures, single residences, office buildings, shopping centers, canals, boats, traffic. If those who saw me gawking had understood I am just a country boy, they might have been more understanding.

Ft. Lauderdale has more canals than the renowned canal city of Venice, Italy. One reason appears to be that when you want to build in the area, you just take a drag line and start dredging a slough. You pile up enough sand to get above water level, have the water alongside; you drive piling down to a solid sub-surface and start building.

The prices paid for building sites and for buildings staggers your imagination, but they keep on building and selling. Many folks who choose Florida for retirement, buy into co-operative apartment structures. These vary from four upwards to hundreds of apartments in a single structure. You buy your suite of one, two or three bedrooms, baths, living room and kitchen, and you own that; then you pay your proportionate part of management, taxes, etc. to the organization which manages the structure.

The rich and the poor alike, seeking a more favorable climate for retirement, buy residences on co-operative apartments, ranging from $10,000 to $300,000—that is correct—we saw one pent house in a co-operative that sold for $300,000.

Florida's cream comes from the tourist traffic, and the motel and hotel owners were crying because the bad weather had decreased the usual traffic. We didn't consider the weather unduly unfavorable. It was sunny most of the time we were there and temperatures ranged upwards to 74, but it was cool on the beaches, and nights were cold, so vacationers were generally disappointed.

Florida is becoming more industrialized and of course the citrus fruit orchards and farming contribute to the economy, and the weather has caused tremendous losses. Cold weather earlier in the winter killed vegetables, cut back the citrus fruit well over half and caused death of many farm animals. No grain is raised for cattle, since year-around pastures usually furnish forage. The cold weather killed the grasses and all the cattle were lank. In Broward county, around Fort Lauderdale, more than 1200 cattle died of starvation and cold.

AT FORT LAUDERDALE, we visited Mr. and Mrs. Paul Endicott of Harrisburg (Mr. Endicott returned to Harrisburg last week), Mr. and Mrs. George B. Lee and their son John who came to Florida between semesters at the University of Illinois, Miss Anne Funkhouser, also attending U. of I.

The Herman Lamberts, formerly of Harrisburg are residents of Fort Lauderdale, where Mr. Lambert is employed as an accountant, and we visited with them. Mr. Lambert is still an ardent bridge player, and while we were there won the open pair championship of the Fort Lauderdale Bridge club. We visited with Mr. and Mrs.

Charles Cassel Jr. She is the former Mary Ann Holdaway of Eldorado, and they live in Fort Lauderdale, where he has a foreign car agency.

I went to the races at the famed Hialeah park one day, saw my first racing on turf, a grass track just inside the regular track. This is one of the famed tracks of the country, noted for its flock of flamingoes, about the only sign of animal life not excited at the races.

I went deep-sea fishing one afternoon, caught one small fish and a good seizure of what is commonly known as sea sickness.

We learned that Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson had arrived just before we left, that Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Franks and children, Mr. and Mrs. Pat Sullivan, and Mr. and Mrs. Eli Lasersohn, among others, had arrived or were to arrive in the area.

We visited Mr. and Mrs. Tom Endicott and children at Delray Beach, where he operates a Buick automobile agency.

ANOTHER HIGHLIGHT of our trip was at West Palm Beach, en route home, where we stopped overnight to see Libi Staiger in the lead in the Muscarnival production of "Can Can". More about this Harrisburg girl and her picture on this page.

From Palm Beach, we took the Florida Sunshine Parkway, a four-lane toll road to its terminus at Fort Pierce, and stopped there hoping to see the Ralph "Tubby" Hornings. We missed "Tubby", as he was at Vero Beach, where he is opening a branch of his Fort Pierce foreign car agency, but we saw Wanda and their son Kenneth, and visited in their home briefly.

We continued that afternoon to Ocala, where this time the weather was more favorable, and we stayed overnight, spending until noon the next day at the famed Silver Springs. We walked around the park and took a ride in the glass bottomed boats, from which we could see clear water, fish, turtles and vegetable life as deep as 60 feet. But one of the greatest pleasures of this stop was inspecting the "Prince of Peace Memorial" where, in seven small chapels, were combination carvings and paintings, in three-dimension effect, of various stages of Christ's ministry and His crucifixion. The settings were by Paul Cunningham, who has devoted more than 20 years of his life to them.

From Ocala, we made Bainbridge, Ga., just before another rain storm, but the weather did not keep us from a dinner date with Capt. and Mrs. Wm. R. Brown. "Bill Bob", as he is known in Harrisburg, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Brown and heads the dental clinic at the Bainbridge Air Force base. They and their two children have a home in Bainbridge, but may have a tour of duty overseas before his discharge from the Army and entrance into private practice.

From Bainbridge we went thru Montgomery and Tuscaloosa, Alabama, Columbus, Miss., stopping overnight at Tupelo, thence to Harrisburg.

The queen bee lays all the eggs of a honeybee colony. She may lay more than 1,500 eggs per day or about 250,000 in a season. An occasional queen may lay 1,000,000 in a lifetime though most queens live only a year or two. She lays fertilized eggs that develop into worker bees or queens, depending upon the needs of the colony, and unfertilized eggs that develop into drones. The drone has a grandfather but no father.

LIBI STAIGER of Harrisburg is held aloft by one of the players in the finale of "Can Can", a musical comedy staged at West Palm Beach, Florida last week. This picture was taken with available stage lighting by Curtis Small, editor of The Daily Register, when he and Mrs. Small attended the opening night performance of the play on Tuesday, February 4. The Harrisburg stage star is the wife of Jerry Eskow, and they have visited in Harrisburg at the home of her mother, Mrs. Mae Staiger. She has appeared in several stage productions and for the past several seasons has appeared in Muscarnivals—a patented tent arrangement which is an innovation in show business. The stage is in the center of a semi-permanent concrete bowl, with a tent covering. Seats are in a circle around the stage, to which there is no conventional entrance, so the actors shift their positions frequently so they do not have their backs to any section of the audience for prolonged periods. Scene changes are made with lights out but there are usually spot attractions on the outer circle of the seats during changes. Allowing for personal prejudice, since they are so well acquainted with Miss Staiger, Mr. and Mrs. Small were of the opinion her performance in the female lead of the production ranked well with any stage, movie or television production they had seen.

Oral Roberts

Most Controversial of Evangelists

By ALBIN KREBS
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — Oral Roberts is possibly the most misunderstood, probably the most flamboyant, and doubtlessly the most controversial of the scores of evangelists who have recently captured the religious imagination of Americans and spread a new spiritual revival across the land.

The tall, forceful, and immensely influential Oklahoman is second only to Billy Graham in popularity and, surprising to many, he can claim almost as many conversions annually—more than a million.

When Roberts conducts a week-long crusade at Hempstead, N. Y., beginning March 25, he will be the second major evangelist to visit the New York area in less than a year. Graham conducted a 16-week crusade here last summer.

Who Is Roberts?

Who is this man Roberts, about whose head controversy swirls. Why do thousands believe him to be truly anointed by God to save souls and heal bodies, while others attack him or dismiss him as a fanatic and faker?

The core of the answer, as well as the center of the controversy, lies in faith-healing.

Actually, Roberts and the Pentecostal Holiness Church, of which he is an ordained minister, are not alone in their belief in the healing power of prayer and faith. Faith-healing is recognized by most Christian denominations, and in the past few years, increasing emphasis has been placed upon healing of physical ills by direct appeal to God.

But in most cases the appeals to the Deity have been sedate affairs, Roberts believes, so much so that in the sight of God the entreaties become half-hearted, apologetic and unconvincing.

Begins With Radio

About 10 years ago, Oral Roberts began radio broadcasts of his simple, direct, often strident appeals to God to instantly and miraculously cure the ill who came to his tent revivals. The radio talks created a mild storm which was only a preview of the virtual hurricane of controversy his television films were to stir up.

Over 140 TV stations, viewers watched the long "healing lines" of the lame and the halt, the sick, the dying, the crippled, the blind and the deaf as they made their tortuous way up to the platform to be touched and prayed over and "healed" by Roberts.

Time after time, Roberts, his intense voice chanting extemporaneous prayers, constantly demanding heavenly help, clutched a subject's cancerous throat or twisted limb, seeking miraculous cures for supposedly incurable ills.

And time and again, the emotion-choked cries could be heard: "Praise God, praise God, I can walk!" "I can see again, I can see!" "My baby, my sweet little baby is cured, praise God!" "Thank you, sweet Jesus, thank you."

Listeners Name Him Healer

Thus hundreds of thousands of people throughout the world who have watched Roberts on TV or in person or heard his radio sermons sincerely consider him a man truly touched by God, a divinely sent healer of the sick. Others, with equal sincerity, look upon the 40-year-old evangelist as an exploiter of the sick, a charlatan willing to use for his own shameless purposes the human misery he finds in others.

What Roberts' detractors cannot ignore is the fact that thousands of people have claimed they were cured through his prayers, that he established the necessary contact between them and God, the Healer. Roberts concedes that many "cures" have been claimed in psychosomatic cases, where the illness was more mental than physical. But other cases cannot be so simply explained.

The LAST Sundown

THE STORY: Ward Sebastian with his pack train loaded with military supplies reaches his ranch and finds Oregon militia encamped there. The military business at hand is quelling a Modoc uprising. One of the officers is Major Ashland. Connie Ashland's uncle.

XVI
Then she was past Sebastian and in Maj. Ross Ashland's arms, laughing a little, crying a little.
"Bless my soul!" rumbled the major. "Bless my caudoused soul! My own Connie—all grown up into a young lady."
He held her off and looked at her fondly. "Yes, sir, a young lady. Handsome, too. I thought you were safe and secure at the Presidio child. Why didn't you stay?"
"With both you and Phil on duty here? Indeed not! Where my men folk are, that's where I'll always be."

With Connie inside the circle of his left arm, Major Ashland held out his free hand.
"Glad to see you again, Sebastian. And sorry to clutter up your premises with my men and myself. But the Gallatin and Searched ranches are already overrun with troops, and I'm here under orders from Colonel Wheaton."

Ward Sebastian had known this bluff, hardy, down-to-earth officer for some time, and liked him. Now, as he shook hands, he said:
"Quite all right, Major. Seems there is a common problem to face."

"Problem is the right word," said the major, his lips pulling ruefully. "I only hope the top command has some understanding of how big the problem really is." Kitty Dutra was standing quietly, watching and listening, dark eyes intent on Connie Ashland. Now Sebastian turned to her.

"Kitty meet Miss Ashland. Connie," and the word came unconsciously to his tongue, "this is Mrs. Dutra. Between her and Mother Gayle, I know you'll be made comfortable. And now, Major, I've a string of pack mules to look after."

Connie Ashland awakened to a stir of movement, to the crackle of open flames, and to the good scene of fat pinewood smoke. Just straightening up after starting a fire on the hearth, was Kitty Dutra. She looked across to Connie and spoke pleasantly.

"Sorry if I woke you. I tried to be quiet. But I had to get this fire going, else you'd freeze."

A gust of warmth reached Connie and she pushed aside the blankets and moved swiftly closer to the welcome of the flames. She yawned and let her nightgown slip from her, stepping from its crumpled folds. The firelight played rosy over her slim, supple beauty and Kitty Dutra, eying her, spoke quietly.

"My dear, you possess complete loveliness. See that you bestow it only on a man thoroughly worthy."

Before Connie, startled, could answer, Kitty Dutra slipped from the room.

Just as she reached the kitchen Ward Sebastian and Lieut. Philip Ashland came in.

Sebastian introduced the young officer to Mrs. Gayle and Kitty Dutra, then turned to Connie.

"And good morning to you, Miss Ashland. You're being well cared for?"

She looked at him with clear directness. "Much better than I deserve," she said simply. "I'm deeply ashamed of myself. Not until a moment ago did I remember your arm."

"No slightest reason why you should," he declared. "It's doing so well I've practically forgotten about it myself. Besides, right now the main concern is you. I'll let Phil explain."

Wondering, Connie turned to her brother. "What is it, Phil?"
"Why," said Phil, "it appears you'll be staying right here at this ranch for some time."

Connie was startled. "I don't understand. I thought Fort Klamath—"

"That could be months away, Connie. Uncle Ross doesn't know when he'll be back there, if at all. And the latest headquarters order is that all troops in this immediate area will be held here until this Modoc affair is settled. So, I won't be going on to Klamath, either. Certainly you can't go there alone. Mr. Sebastian, being very generous, offers you the hospitality of this ranch. It would be much the simplest answer."

Connie shook her head quickly and with emphasis.

"We can't consider it, Phil. It would be a terrible imposition. I'll go on to Fort Klamath some way and make the best of it. But I absolutely refuse to..."

"You don't understand," Sebastian argued. "This is a lonely land, where company is a rare luxury, and therefore valued highly. Besides, by agreeing to stay, you'll lift a lot of concern from the minds of your brother and your uncle." She studied him intently, searching for the slightest hint of insincerity and finding none. Considering his last words, her instinctive opposition began to crumble.

SOMETHING NEW — In past winters they all usually waited on Casey Stengel. But in this banquet season the Yankee manager frequently found himself sitting it out until Milwaukee's Fred Haney finished a speech.

"You make it difficult for me to refuse," she admitted.
"They don't think of it. We'll call the matter settled. If you've extra luggage in Yreka, Sam Lester and I will bring it through on our next trip."

"There is a trunk. At the Siskiyou House. I was to come up to Fort Klamath later by Army transport. It isn't a very large trunk."

"You'll have it," Sebastian promised.

Congress Group Sees 10 Years of Farm Subsidies

WASHINGTON (UP) — At least 10 more years of federal farm subsidies were predicted today by a joint congressional economic subcommittee.

The group recommended that farm production controls be tightened.

It also proposed that farmers be allowed to buy and sell their federal marketing quotas for major crops.

The subcommittee said in a report that "pressures" now surrounding farm policy apparently make it impossible for Congress or the administration to coordinate the clashing demands of American agriculture. It said Congress should consider setting up a federal farm board or commission to operate farm programs within a framework fixed by Congress.

Sen. Arthur V. Watkins (R-Utah), filing a minority report for himself, challenged the majority finding that the farm problem is caused by the fact that demand is not growing as fast as farmers' ability to produce.

Watkins said the trouble grows out of federal subsidies which "encourage production" of more than consumers will buy. The solution, he said, is to take "gradual steps to eliminate the . . . government subsidies."

Other subcommittee members were Sen. John Sparkman (D-Ala.), chairman, and Reps. Wright Patman (D-Tex.), Henry O. Talle (R-Iowa) and Thomas B. Curtis (R-Mo.).

Lincoln Great Because Of Belief in God: Free

Union had been preserved. Lincoln didn't try to justify what had been done. He said in essence what was said in the Garden of Gethsemane: "Not My Will But Thine Be Done." He was the God-Given leader of our Nation in its darkest hour."

Free, who earlier had spoken of Lincoln's "House Divided" speech, declared in concluding that "we see a house divided against itself again, but this time it is not just the United States but the whole world. There's a struggle for the soul and mind of man, and in this contest we must not be found wanting."

"As we go forward let us believe as Lincoln did in the existence of a Supreme Being who is the final authority in the affairs of men. Let us believe God has established a moral law of the universe that is as unescapable as the physical laws. Let us believe God intended man to live in peace, freedom and brotherhood. As Lincoln said, let us have faith that right makes might."

Ernie Webster of Eldorado was master of ceremonies and Atty. I. M. Hancock of Harrisburg introduced the following candidates: Carl Sneed of Herrin for congress, Gordon Kerr for state senator, Eugene Choussier, C. L. McCormick and Homer Butler for state representative, Paul McKinnis for county superintendent of schools, Evell Winkelman and Robert Holmes for county clerk, Delmas Miley and Muriel Holland for county treasurer, Henry C. Dempsey and Henry DeVar for sheriff and Jack C. Morris for county judge. Morris introduced Free.

The invocation was by the Rev. V. B. Raines, the benediction by Fred Gintert. Organ music was played during the evening by Mrs. Gill Montgomery of Eldorado. The ETHS Home Economics department under Mrs. Aileen Gates served the meal.

Test Launch Redstone Missile

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UP) — The Redstone missile, workhorse of the Army's Jupiter-C satellite carrier, blasted into cloudy skies Tuesday night in an apparently successful test launching.

The 60-foot Redstone, a 200 to 300-mile range missile already in ward from the missile test center at 7:52 p. m. e. s. t., but was visible for only about 30 seconds before it zoomed into a low-hanging bank of clouds which spoiled the show for scores of spectators lining beaches.

The roar of the Redstone's 75,000-pound thrust engine was heard, however, for nearly three minutes as the missile streaked out over the Atlantic.

The Army plans to bring field crews here soon to test fire the Redstone as part of the missile training program. The Redstone, built by the Chrysler Corp., now uses a liquid propellant, but a longer-range version is being developed which will use more powerful solid fuel.

House Probers Subpena Ousted Counsel to Testify in TV Case

WASHINGTON (UP) — A House investigating subcommittee today subpoenaed its ousted chief counsel, Bernard Schwartz, to testify Thursday on a politically explosive Miami TV case.

Schwartz said he would accept service of the subpoena later today.

He talked with newsmen after conferring briefly with Subcommittee Chairman Oren Harris (D Ark.) at Harris' committee offices. Schwartz said he was called to the office by Harris.

Schwartz was subpoenaed shortly after Sen. Wayne Morse (D Ore.) agreed to return to Harris' subcommittee some files which had been turned over to him by Schwartz after Schwartz was fired as subcommittee counsel. But Morse, who already had studied the documents, said he would ask for a separate Senate inquiry into allegations of high-level misconduct contained in the papers.

B52 Jet Hits Building; 5 Dead

RAPID CITY, S. D. (UP) — Five persons were killed and six others injured late Tuesday when a B52 jet bomber rammed through a concrete building while landing in a snow squall at Ellsworth Air Force Base.

Killed were two of the eight airmen aboard the demolished eight-million-dollar plane and all three men in the small instrument landing building. The survivors were treated for minor injuries.

Witnesses said the giant plane, the nation's costliest bomber, hit and snapped a power line as it lumbered in through the snow for a landing.

Six crewmen leaped from the bomber seconds before it burst into flame. It was not known if the dead airmen were killed on impact or trapped and burned to death in the fire.

The dead plane crewmen were 1st Lt. Kenneth B. Kaeppler, Milwaukee, Wis., and Capt. John O. Connell, Chattanooga, Tenn. The victims inside the building were Glen M. Allen, Rapid City; Airman 1C James E. Ferrell, Williston, N. D., and Airman 1C Ronald R. Mitchell, Canton, Ohio.

SVDA Votes to Take Part in N.Y. Exhibit

sponsored exhibit got more than 45 prospects for southern Illinois sites with about 20 still showing interest and with one signing up for a plant at Flora two weeks ago, it was stated.

This year, it was believed, 10,000 interested persons will be on hand for the exposition. It also is believed there will be about 120 exhibits this year, compared with 34 last year, the first year of the exposition.

Council May Help
Harrisburg's share of the cost of the SVDA exhibit will be about $1,600 and there were strong indications the city of Harrisburg will do its part in getting this money. The three city commissioners were present yesterday and appeared in accord with the proceedings. They were Charles R. Hine, who spoke in favor of the exposition project, Morris Darnell and Sneed Jordan. Mayor Claud Gibbons, who could not attend, voiced his approval later.

Mr. Davenport explained the set-up and the aims of the SVDA, declaring it was the hope that the counties of Saline and Gallatin can accomplish more united than single communities.

"The SVDA is the greatest thing we have and I believe you'd all be amazed at what might be accomplished," he said, adding that Southern Illinois University is co-operating fully with the two-county group. Three from the SIU staff were on hand for the meetings yesterday here and at Eldorado last night.

Expert Says Large Tracks in Jackson County Not by Cat

MURPHYSBORO, Ill. (UP) — A wildlife expert says those king-sized tracks residents in north central Jackson County have been worrying about are not cat tracks.

The tracks were spotted during the weekend in the Ava and Oraville areas north of here. Some men followed the tracks but did not spot the animal that made them. At one point, the unidentified animal jumped a four-foot fence. One of the prints measured about 5 x 7 inches.

Dr. Willard D. Klimstra, director of the cooperative wildlife research program at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale, sent one of his staff to investigate Tuesday.

"The tracks definitely are not those of a mountain lion or cougar," Klimstra said. He said they undoubtedly were made by a big dog and added that the tracks were distorted in the snow.

The sheriff's office said a Great Dane has been reported in the area where the tracks were spotted.

The Miami case Schwartz will be questioned about involves an award of TV Channel 10 by the Federal Communications Commission to National Airlines. The FCC overruled its field examiner in making the award to the air line.

The subcommittee has indicated it also has been investigating the role of FCC Commissioner Richard Mack in the Miami case.

Schwartz, fired by the subcommittee Monday, took a large collection of what he called his own "working" documents to Morse and Sen. John J. Williams (R Del.) after midnight that night—a short time before a federal marshal came to Schwartz' room with a subpoena to recover all the files.

Williams would say only that he does not have any documents.

Morse said today he had them and he so informed Speaker Sam Rayburn's office Tuesday morning.

"I will turn them over to Rep. Harris or to any other person authorized to receive them," Morse said.

Harris said he would probably recover the documents through Rayburn's office.

Harris promised that he will press the House investigation under a new chief counsel. He said it will be a "sure enough" probe of any irregularities.

Morse said he has read some of Schwartz' files and "they bear out that the Eisenhower administration is honeycombed with political immorality."

Visits Permitted

CHICAGO — Mrs. William Stokes was granted the divorce. But Stokes, 60, was given what he wanted, too. He may visit the family dog twice a week, the court decrees.

Elderly Need to Eat More Lightly

CHICAGO—(UP)—It's not necessary for elderly persons to alter their normal eating habits except in the amount of food consumed, according to a New York physician.

However, older persons need fewer calories to maintain their normal weight.

Dr. Pollack, an associate professor of clinical medicine at New York University's Postgraduate School of Medicine, said that obesity of the elderly is not due to luxurious eating, but to eating the same amount of food they did in their younger years.

The body needs a decreasing amount of oxygen as it ages, Dr. Pollack said. When this is coupled with a decreased overall activity, it means that the body needs fewer calories to maintain the same weight.

Looking at Sports

BY BILL MELTON

Dickie Crowe

Bonus Baby! A grandson of Harrisburg residents Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Partain, 325 East Mellrath street, has been signed to a contract by the Los Angeles Dodgers and received an undisclosed bonus for signing.

Dickie Crowe, who has visited in Harrisburg with his grandparents several times, lives in Monroe, La., and was all-state quarterback and all-star conference second baseman. In 1957 he played semipro baseball and batted .365.

During his high school career he was a four-year letter winner in baseball and earned three letters in both football and basketball.

Although the bonus amount was not disclosed, publicly Dickie's grandfather states it was a "nice" sum.

Crowe is to report to the Dodgers' Green Bay, Wis., farm club in the Class B Three-Eye league.

Basketball Widows! That is the name my wife has coined for the wives or girl friends of men following basketball in various capacities — including coaches, officials, reporters, etc.

"I can spot them every time," declares my "widow." "Just look around the gym until you find some woman sitting apart from the crowd, looking slightly lonely and more-or-less disinterested. She has come to the game with some guy, who immediately upon entering the gym, excused himself and followed some team to the dressing room, or maybe went to change into the grey pants and striped shirt of a referee, or wandered over to the scorer's bench. In any event the man immediately became a part of some phase of the game and the gal was left to watch the game alone and look hopefully over the crowd for a face she recognizes." That's what Virginia says. Maybe she's correct.

Hadn't given it any thought, but for the last ten years or so the BW (Basketball Widow) has been going to ball games with me.

We go to the games together. Return home together. But when we get to the door it's the old "I'll see you." Then I go to the scorer's table, shoot the breeze with the official scorer, timer, referee, or anyone that will talk. Pretty soon the game starts and I am busy trying to keep up with the points, fouls and highlights. At halftime, if I can find the BW, go over and offer to get her some popcorn and/or a Coke. By the time I have pushed my way through the concession crowd and back it's time for the second half to start. So it's shove a sack and a cup into her hands and back to the scorer's bench.

That's what is known as taking your wife to a ball game.

Actually it isn't that bad for us any more. After ten years along the same route—Carrier Mills, Galatia, Eldorado, Ridgway, Equality, Shawneetown—the BW has come to know, at least by sight, a number of people in each town.

What really brought on the discussion at our house Sunday was the fact Virginia had noticed a couple of lonely looking girls during the week and the description identified them as the girl friends of referees.

"I knew they were Basketball Widows," my BW declared. "They looked just the way I used to feel when I first started going to the ball games with you—lonely."

Jay Lovelace, the Carbondale Terrier hot shot, had a record-breaking night against Cairo Saturday. He led his team to a 112-83 decision by scoring 48 points. Lovelace connected on 20 of 28 field goal tries and 8 of ten free tosses.

Wildcats Trip Cave-In-Rock Easily, 70 to 45

A strong second half carried Carrier Mills to an easy 70-45 decision over Cave-In-Rock Tuesday night. The victory, gained on their home floor, was the 19th of the season for the Wildcats against a lone loss.

Control type ball held the scoring down in the first half, Carrier Mills holding a 12-3 quarter time lead and 24-17 advantage at the intermission.

Coming out in the third quarter Carrier Mills broke loose for 19 points, then capped the evening with a 27-point fourth frame.

Lewis Williams, who will become ineligible soon due to age, played his last home game and the next to last game of his high school career. He will be eligible for the game at Norris City Friday, then observe his 20th birthday before another game is played by the 'Cats. He played his usual steady floor game and contributed seven points to the Carrier Mills total.

Vern Rollins suffered a sprained ankle early in the fourth quarter and had to leave the game, but is expected to be ready for the next game on the Wildcat schedule.

Carrier Mills hit .484, with 30 goals in 62 attempts. The 'Cats closed on a high note, hitting the final eight efforts.

Cave-in-Rock had a .370 average with 43 hits in 35 tries. The preliminary game was won by Carrier Mills 54-51.

Veteran Coach Gay Kintner's Team Barely Edges Son's Squad, 54-53

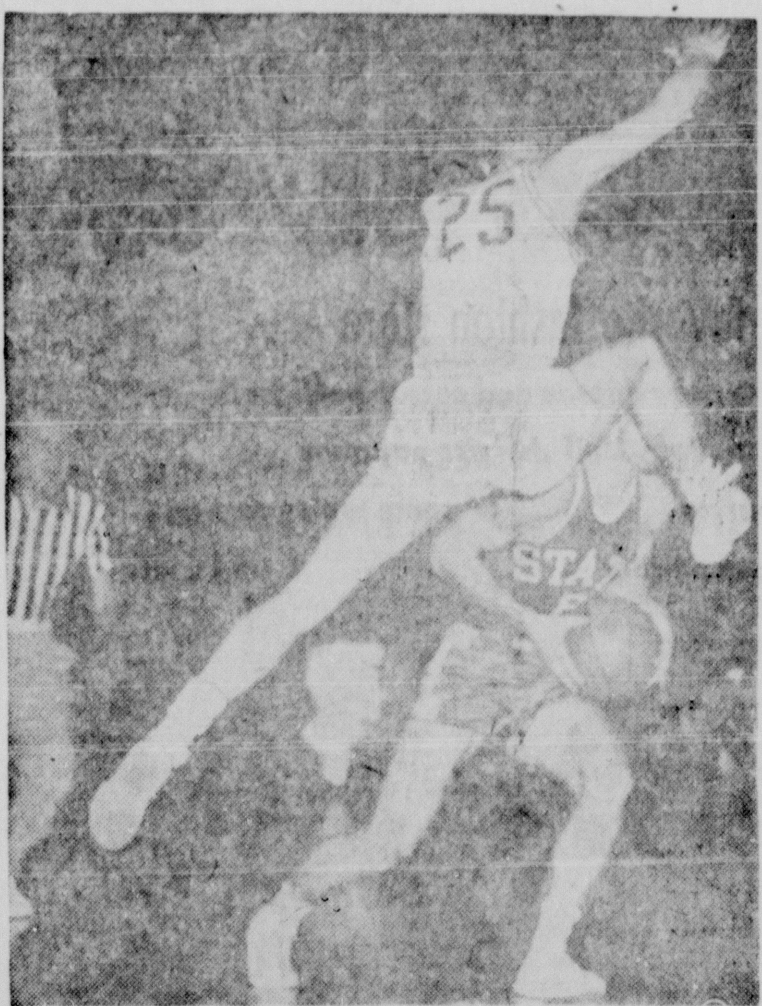

By United Press
Veteran Coach Gay Kintner's Decatur high school basketball team squeaked out a 54-53 victory over Decatur Eisenhower high coached by Kintner's son, Galen, Tuesday night.

Kintner, who has won three state championships in his more than 30 years at Decatur, had his son as an assistant until this year when Galen went to Eisenhower high as head coach.

South Carolina, the eighth of the original 13 states, is called the Palmetto State.

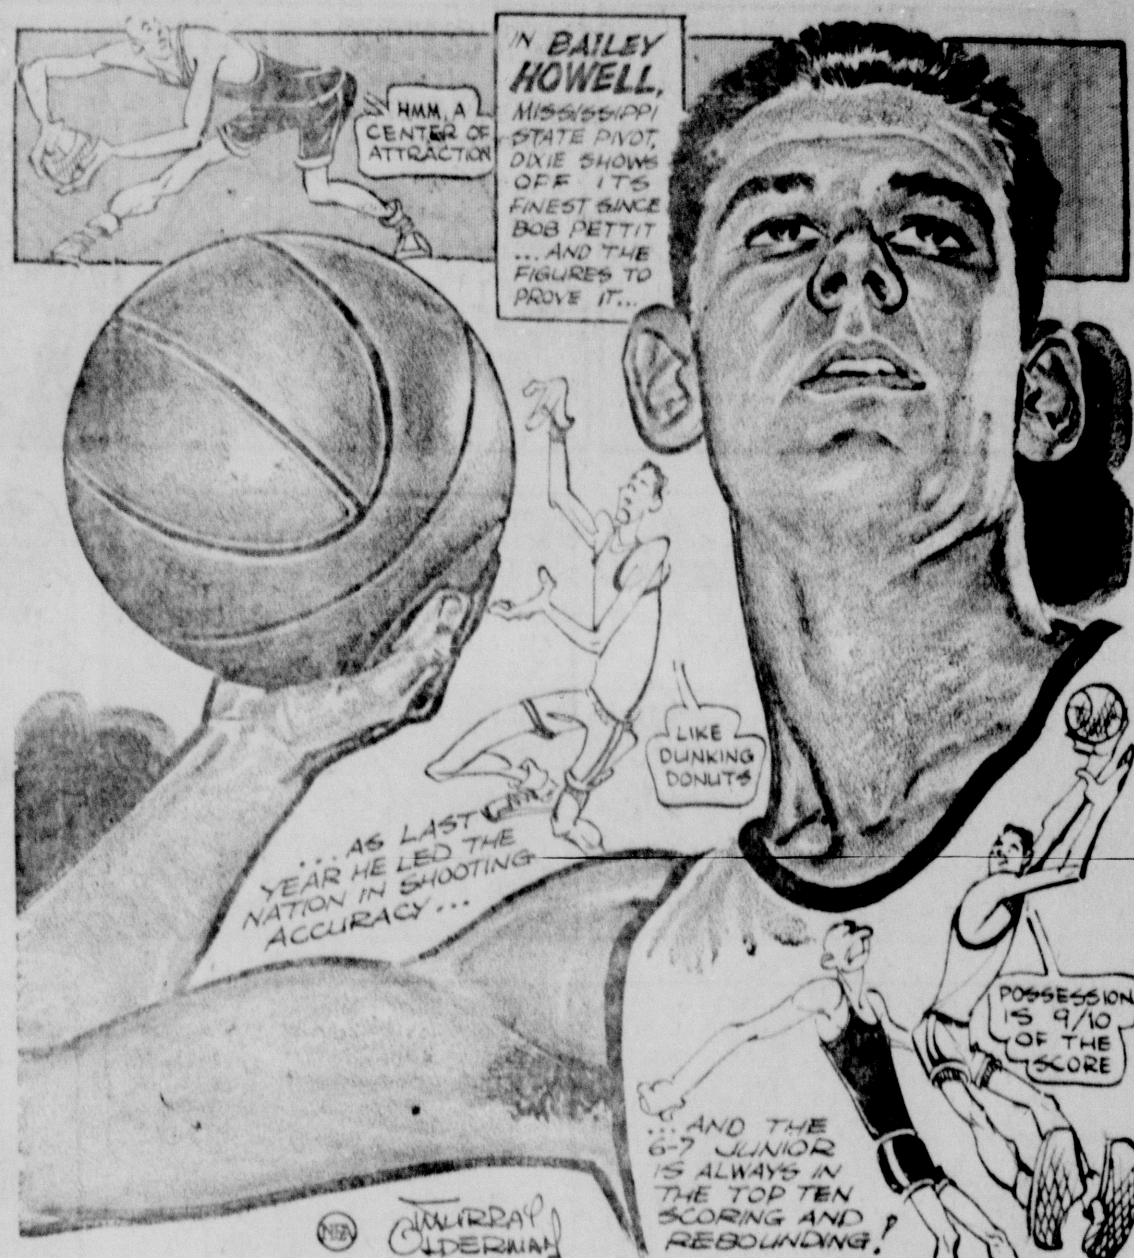

GRIPPING DETAILS—Jockey R. J. Moran, left, pays close attention as Claude Hooper shows him a trick for holding his horse. He should, for Hooper is 52—the oldest jockey on the track at Hialeah—and Moran is youngest at 17.

TAKE OFF—Bobby Plump of Butler took no chances and did a high jump when he thought Indiana State's Mike Jones was going up for a shot. Jones stayed down, however, and found Plump flying at him.
